About EDEN

The European Distance and E-Learning Network (EDEN) is a UK-based non-governmental educational association established in 1991. As a meeting place, EDEN assists a wide range of European institutions, networks and individuals to become involved in professional cooperation through

- comprehensive information and networking activities,
- the organisation of high standard European conferences, and
- the release of quality professional publications.

Currently EDEN has 177 institutional members. There are over 1000 members in the Network of Academics and Professionals (NAP) – the community of individuals within the Association. The 400+ institutions represented within the EDEN membership come from 42 European and 17 non-European countries.

In terms of the size, range and geographical representation of its members, EDEN is the most comprehensive European association of its kind. We invite you to read more about the diverse, dynamic and engaging activities of the Association on the EDEN website, which can be found at <http://www.eden-online.org>.

The EDEN Conferences

The internationally renowned EDEN Annual Conferences are organised in different countries every year since 1992 in June. The smaller thematic conferences, such as the Open Classroom Conferences, and Research Workshops are alternating bi-annually, taking place in the second half of October. The Annual Conferences attract a professional audience of 350-450 participants, while the Autumn events usually gather 100-200 people from worldwide. These events are often utilised by EDEN to present, pilot and/or promote project findings and progress.

EDEN's reputation as a significant European Association has been acknowledged and underpinned by its involvement in leading EU projects and initiatives. The Association's professional excellence and achievements in international collaboration is exemplified by the 60+ successfully completed EU projects with their 200+ partner institutes since 1997.

In the past years EDEN has introduced its own open badges scheme and has been participating in projects like D-TRANSFORM (supporting the modernisation of European universities), OpenPROF (to foster open professional collaboration for innovation), Open Badge Network (aiming to promote open badges) and eLene4work (aiming to analyse and develop digital skills).

The 26th EDEN ANNUAL CONFERENCE

Diversity Matters!

The EDEN 2017 Annual Conference in Jönköping focuses on the subject of diversity in learners' attitudes, needs, media, socio-economic background, disadvantaged settings and learning environments.

Why in Jönköping?

Sweden has always been in the forefront of learning innovation, open and digital education. The skills and knowledge required to take an active part in a society characterised by digital technology are embedded, learned, and practiced in people's daily lives. Jönköping County in southern Sweden is an excellent example of an impressively developing city and region which attracts economic, cultural and social progress and modernisation.

Jönköping University with its 10,000 students (of which 1,500 are international students) has a close cooperation with business and society, both in education and research. The multi-disciplinary research platform Communication, Culture and Diversity (CCD) of the Jönköping University focuses on issues of learning and communication. These attributes made Jönköping University the right choice to host the EDEN 2017 Annual Conference.

Why diversity?

Technology and open education open doors to groups of learners from a range of backgrounds, generations, cultures with different languages, and ways of communication. New policies and practices entailed by the high presence of digital tools have to take into account the "inclusion" or "exclusion" of different groups in society.

How do educators deal with diversity in media and technology enhanced learning environments? How can such diversity be accounted for and used to transform and adapt online learning settings? How do educators, stakeholders and policy makers meet digital inequalities? What are the new challenges for teachers and educators in the new media landscapes to create meaningful contexts for learning? The collaboration between human mind and machine has to be regularly reconsidered. Co-ordination of information, knowledge and creativity is of high importance for the educational experience.

EDEN 2017 is the forum that offers a chance to gain further insight into these core questions. The conference themes include (among others):

- Diversity in ICT enhanced learning
- Concept and practice of diversity in different socio-cultural environments
- Diversity and open learning environments, efficiency and effectiveness questions
- Learning and the changing socio-economic demands of society in the age of large scale migration, inclusion and motivation of learner groups facing societal integration problems
- Changing attitudes, behaviours and roles of learners in the emerging media and technology landscapes in formal and informal settings
- Digital pedagogy approaches to manage diversity in media and technology enhanced learning
- Learning analytics in assessing diversity in learners background and performance
- Motivation and engagement of learners with different socio-cultural background
- How does educational framing, from policy level down to the actual learning scenario, allow for various types of ICT enhanced, open, distance education and e-learning?
- Impacts of increasing complexity of stakeholder groups of education
